WINNSBORO, S. C.

Wednesday, Aug. 23, 1905.

Has any one remarked that the reason why the dispensary is catching it so hard this year is because that this is the thirteenth year of its existence?

A pretty good evidence of the fact that the dispensary is in very bad shape is the number of remedies that are being suggested from all sources for its improvement.

In Union there is strength—at least there was enough strength or opposition in Union county to the dispensary that it was voted out by a vote of almost two to one. Good for Union.

We had hoped to print this week the very able and statesmanlike letter of Dr. Cromer to Senator Tillman alluded to in our last issue. Mr. Tillman has since replied to Dr. Cromer in a letter of about twice the length; and as we can not present both on account of space limitations, we shall be compelled not to print either.

Is there any better proof possible that the dispensary has failed as a solution of the whiskey problem than the fact, that, while at least a dozen counties are now circulating petitions praying for elections on the proposition of voting it out of their bounds, there is not a single community in the whole State in which petitions are being circulated for the opening of a dispensary?

That safe in the supervisor's office is not the only one that Fairfield county has, that is especially adapted for burglars and for fire. There is one in the office of the judge of probate that fully meets these demands, as the key has been lost and the lock has been broken. While the county is going into debt on such a large scale, why is it that some improvements in the way of protection against losses can not be made?

Editor Fooshe is grieved, we are sure, to see the statement, going the rounds of the papers, that the sorghum crop is about to be destroyed. But then it is a good season for sowing turnip seed.—Chester Reporter.

Yes, Brother Buchanan, you are right, for we had hoped that one good point in favor of this great forage crop was the fact that it was not a prey for the multiplied and multiplying insects that destroy millions of dollars worth of crops every year. But because of these bugs no one must be humbugged out of planting this great forage crop that is becoming so much more largely planted all this while. So we are still standing on our same old platform.

Surely it must be that every parent has a burning desire to give to his child every advantage that will multiply his possibilities of increased usefulness to himself and to those with whom he comes in contact in all the varied duties of life. There are but very few exceptions to the general rule, when this happy ideal of loving parents is not attained in giving the child the advantages of a college education. There is far more danger of limiting the child's possibilities of usefulness by depriving him of this avenue than there is of his being spoiled in his college training. Elsewhere in this issue we print a very valuable article from Dr. Scherer, the distinguished president of the Newberry College, in which are clearly set forth the possible advantages to the college-bred man as compared with his less fortunate brother who has not availed himself of similar advantages. A careful and thoughtful reading of this valuable paper ought to cause parents to act for the best interests of their sons and their daughters. Yea, more, it should be the means of awakening in some boy or some girl, whose parents' limited financial resources practically shut them out from these superior advantages, the determination to earn for themselves the necessary wherewithal for getting the advantages offered by a college training.

"Where there is a will there is a way" is an old maxim that applies with peculiar force to the boy or girl who would overcome barriers in the way of securing a college education.

The increased number of advertisements in the News and Herald at this time as compared with the number usually carried is a good indication of a healthier sentiment that exists in business circles here. This larger use of printers ink, the indispensable business-getter, is certain to have a telling effect on the trade of the community. This persistency is going to cause some people in the country to come here to their trading that would under other circumstances go elsewhere or resort to ordering. It helps a town to have its merchants extending invitations to the people of the country to come this way to do their trading. Those who are now advertising need the assistance of those who are not, so that the invitation to trade in Winnsboro may be reinforced to its fullest. It will pay you to have your advertisement in the News and Herald, which now goes into four-fifths of the white homes of Fairfield county. A trial will convince you.

The report has been started, we believe by Rev. Mr. Tate in connection with a report on temperance before the Saluda Baptist Association, that at the recent meeting of the State Press Association the editors were on a drunken spree every night. And because we suggested in our write up of the meeting of the Association that there was a growing sentiment on the part of the members against the serving of wines etc., at these annual gatherings, the Greenwood Journal takes this as part substantiation of the report. This inference is not correct, for there is a vast difference between members taking a social glass around the banquet board and being on a spree. On the contrary, we are very glad to say that the very basis of our statement that there is a growing sentiment against the having these beverages at the banquet is the fact that a very considerable number of the members and their guests refrained from partaking of this feature altogether. While it is true, as one of our exchanges suggests, that those who do not want to need not partake, yet it is also very true that, if a majority of the members should prefer to have the banquet without the serving of these extras, those in charge should have proper regard to this desire of the greater number. And again we would say that it would be a forward step in the cause of temperance for the members of the State Press Association to have their chief social function without this feature, a reform which, we are sure, would meet with the hearty approval of a very large percent of the membership.

The call for a mass meeting at the court house in Winnsboro Saturday, August 20, of the citizens of Fairfield county, opposed to the dispensary system of controlling the whiskey traffic, brings the question squarely before the people of the county as to whether they wish Fairfield to join the increasing ranks of the few counties that have parted company with the State in the sale of whiskey or prefer for it to remain in the decreasing ranks of those counties which favor the present method of the State engaging in the whiskey traffic. The fact that three counties have already voted out the dispensary and that petitions are now in circulation in at least a dozen other counties, praying for elections on the proposition of voting out the dispensary, is a strong indication that the people of South Carolina are becoming more and more disgusted with the dispensary as a solution of the whiskey problem. The people are now clamoring for what they asked for when they were given the dispensary as a substitute, prohibition. Those who are in favor of Fairfield becoming a prohibition county, for that is what would be the result of voting the dispensary out, are urged to be present at this meeting and thus show that they are willing to give this forward movement in behalf of temperance reform their moral support. Now that the fight has been entered upon, let it be pushed with vigor and a determination to win. If all who are opposed to the dispensary will now pull together, the fight will be won.

Bont Her Double.

"I knew no one, for four weeks, when I was sick with typhoid and kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Annie Hunter, of Pittsburg, Pa., "and when I got better, although I had one of the best doctors I could get, I was bent double, and had to rest my hands on my knees when I walked. From this terrible affliction I was rescued by Electric Bitters, which restored my health and strength, ever. They are simply wonderful. VINEGAR FLAVOR

The food products of malted grains are universally recognized as wholesome, and in making barley the grain goes through a drying process in which it develops a very agreeable aroma. This finally serves to give that exquisite delicacy of the taste that malt vinegar, while superior to any other vinegar, is obtained from any other malted grain.
